

the 1990s, the number of people who have been employed in the public sector has increased in all countries. The increase in public sector employment has been particularly rapid in the United States, where the public sector has grown from 10.5% of the total workforce in 1970 to 17.5% in 1995. In the United Kingdom, the public sector has grown from 12.5% of the total workforce in 1970 to 18.5% in 1995. In the Netherlands, the public sector has grown from 15.5% of the total workforce in 1970 to 22.5% in 1995.

The increase in public sector employment has been driven by a number of factors. One of the most important factors is the growth of the welfare state. In many countries, the welfare state has expanded significantly since the 1970s, leading to a large increase in public sector employment. Another important factor is the growth of the public sector in education and health care. In many countries, the public sector has become the dominant provider of education and health care, leading to a large increase in public sector employment.

The increase in public sector employment has also been driven by the growth of the public sector in other areas, such as transportation and infrastructure. In many countries, the public sector has become the dominant provider of transportation and infrastructure services, leading to a large increase in public sector employment. Finally, the increase in public sector employment has also been driven by the growth of the public sector in other areas, such as social services and public administration.

The increase in public sector employment has had a number of important effects on the economy. One of the most important effects is the increase in government spending. In many countries, the increase in public sector employment has led to a large increase in government spending, which has had a significant impact on the economy. Another important effect is the increase in government revenue. In many countries, the increase in public sector employment has led to a large increase in government revenue, which has also had a significant impact on the economy.

The increase in public sector employment has also had a number of important effects on the labor market. One of the most important effects is the increase in the number of people who are employed in the public sector. In many countries, the increase in public sector employment has led to a large increase in the number of people who are employed in the public sector, which has had a significant impact on the labor market. Another important effect is the increase in the number of people who are employed in the private sector. In many countries, the increase in public sector employment has led to a large increase in the number of people who are employed in the private sector, which has also had a significant impact on the labor market.

The increase in public sector employment has also had a number of important effects on the economy. One of the most important effects is the increase in government spending. In many countries, the increase in public sector employment has led to a large increase in government spending, which has had a significant impact on the economy. Another important effect is the increase in government revenue. In many countries, the increase in public sector employment has led to a large increase in government revenue, which has also had a significant impact on the economy.

The increase in public sector employment has also had a number of important effects on the labor market. One of the most important effects is the increase in the number of people who are employed in the public sector. In many countries, the increase in public sector employment has led to a large increase in the number of people who are employed in the public sector, which has had a significant impact on the labor market. Another important effect is the increase in the number of people who are employed in the private sector. In many countries, the increase in public sector employment has led to a large increase in the number of people who are employed in the private sector, which has also had a significant impact on the labor market.

The increase in public sector employment has also had a number of important effects on the economy. One of the most important effects is the increase in government spending. In many countries, the increase in public sector employment has led to a large increase in government spending, which has had a significant impact on the economy. Another important effect is the increase in government revenue. In many countries, the increase in public sector employment has led to a large increase in government revenue, which has also had a significant impact on the economy.